Duration - 5 Days
Venue - NIPHM,
Hyderabad

The liberalization of trade in the post WTO scenario has opened up new avenues for international trade in agricultural commodities. One of the main component in the international trade of agricultural commodities is application of biosecurity and quarantine rules & procedures by exporting & importing countries. The PQ rules, procedures and degree of implementation varies from country to country depending upon the biosecurity concern. The Govt. of India regulates imports of plant materials through PQ order 2003 issued under DIP act, 1914. The training programme enables the participants to get exposure to international conventions, national standards & procedures to be followed while importing or exporting plants & plant materials. Moreover, it also provides a detailed account & hands on experience in on-line registration through PQIS.
